Tax Information for the Shareholder in the Federal Republic of Germany

The following statements are based on the legal situation as of 2 April 2025 by way of a general guide only for potential investors. They do not constitute legal or tax advice. The comments are limited to certain aspects of current German tax law and practice and may not apply to certain classes of investors. Prospective investors should be aware that the relevant law or practice and the interpretation of the underlying legal provisions may change, possibly with retroactive effect. The summary of the anticipated tax treatment in Germany only considers investors who are resident in Germany for tax purposes and who are the beneficial owners of Shares (“German Investors”). These statements are limited to issues of German income, corporate income and trade tax. These statements are not to be considered exhaustive and may not be taken as a guarantee to any investor of the tax outcome of investing in the Shares.

Prospective investors are therefore advised to seek independent professional advice concerning possible taxation or other consequences of purchasing, holding, selling or otherwise disposing of the Shares under the laws of their country of incorporation, establishment, citizenship, residence or domicile. Furthermore, it has to be taken into account that - in addition to the income tax and corporation tax - the solidarity surcharge may be levied as a supplemental tax and that church tax might arise.

German Investors should be subject to the German Investment Tax Act (Investmentsteuergesetz) (“GInvTA”) in relation to their participation in the Sub-Funds.

Taxation of Investors under GInvTA

The following earnings of an opaque investment fund like the Sub-Funds will be taxable at the level of the investors:

- distributions from the investment fund;
- the lump-sum taxation amount; and
- capital gains from the disposal of the fund units.

In case the fund has no or a limited distribution, a lump-sum taxation amount will be taxed to the Shareholder. The lump-sum taxation amount will be attributed to investors without distribution on an annual basis as of the first working day of the following calendar year. The lump-sum taxation amount is determined by calculating the minimum base income being (x) the redemption price (or alternatively stock exchange price or market price) per share at the beginning of the year multiplied by (y) the so-called base interest rate (Basiszins) (for 2025 2.53%) multiplied by (z) 70%. However, such minimum base income will be capped by reference to the sum of (i) the actual increase of the redemption price (or stock exchange price or market price, as applicable) of a share during the year plus (ii) the actual annual distributions (being the maximum base income). The lower positive value of the minimum base income and the maximum base income, as determined in the manner set out above, is then reduced by the actual annual distributions of the fund and the result is the lump-sum taxation amount.

With regard to the taxation of the German investors, the above-mentioned income from the opaque investment fund will be taxed at the German flat rate tax of 25% (plus solidarity surcharge and church tax, if applicable) in the case of private individual investors or at the personal income tax rate or corporate income tax rate and, where applicable, trade tax in the case of investors holding the fund units as business assets. The German domestic partial tax exemption regimes (i.e. 95% participation exemption for corporations and the 40% partial income tax exemption for individuals) will not be applicable. However, the GInvTA provides the following partial tax exemptions for distributions, gains from the disposals and redemptions of fund units and lump-sum taxation amounts:

- if the fund invests more than 50% of its assets in qualifying equity (Equity Fund): 30% for private individual investors, 60% for business individual investors and 80% for corporate investors;
- if the fund invests at least 25% of its assets in qualifying equity (Mixed Fund): 15% for private individual investors, 30% for business individual investors and 40% for corporations;
- if the fund invests more than 50% of its assets in real estate or real estate companies (Real Estate Fund): 60% for all investor groups; and
- if the fund invests more than 50% of its assets in foreign real estate or real estate companies with foreign real estate (Non-Domestic Real Estate Fund): 80% for all investor groups.

The partial tax exemptions of 60% and 80% with regard to Equity Funds do not, however, apply to life and health insurance companies if the fund units are allocated to their capital investments (Kapitalanlagen) or to credit institutions, financial service institutions or securities institutions if the fund units are allocated to their trading investments (Handelsbestand) or are acquired with the intention to realise a short-term profit. For trade tax purposes, only half of the described partial exemptions apply.

The income from the opaque investment fund is generally subject to German withholding tax at a rate of 25% (plus solidarity surcharge thereon and (if applicable) church tax) if the Shares are held in custody with a German custodian (the "Disbursing Agent"). Disbursing Agents are German resident credit institutions, financial services institutions or securities institutions (including German permanent establishments of foreign institutions). The German Investors must provide to the Disbursing Agent the amount of withholding tax to be imposed. For this purpose, the Disbursing Agent may collect the amount of withholding tax to be imposed, without the German Investor's consent, from an account the German Investor maintains in its name. To the extent that the German Investor does not fulfil its obligation to provide to the Disbursing Agent the amount of withholding tax to be imposed, the Disbursing Agent must notify this to the competent tax office.

Partial exemptions for investment income must generally already be considered when calculating the amount of withholding tax. However, for Equity Funds and Mixed Funds, the exemption rate applicable to private individual investors of 30% for Equity Funds or 15% for Mixed Funds is always applicable and business individual investors and corporate investors may claim the applicable higher partial exemption rates (60% or 80%) only in the tax assessment procedure unless an exemption from withholding tax applies.

The levying of withholding tax generally has a final discharging effect for private individual investors. For business individual investors and corporate investors as well as for private individual investors who are subject to an income tax rate below 25%, the withholding tax levied is, as a general rule, creditable on the respective German Investor's income or corporate income tax in the respective German Investor's tax assessment and may be refunded.

For private individual investors, no withholding tax needs to be levied if they provide a withholding tax exemption certificate of a sufficient amount to the Disbursing Agent, if the investment income portions does not exceed an amount of EUR 1,000 or, in case of a joint tax assessment of spouses, EUR 2,000.

For tax-exempt institutional investors (such as, for example, pension funds), no withholding tax is levied under specific conditions. The same applies under certain conditions where investors are domestic credit institutions, domestic financial services institutions or domestic securities institutions. In the case of capital gains from a disposal of Shares, this also applies under certain conditions where the investor is a corporation subject to unlimited tax liability in Germany or where the capital gains are business income of a domestic business.

Pursuant to the Prospectus dated February 2023, “BBH Core Select” is considered to be an Equity Fund.

The Sub-Funds qualify under the new opaque tax regime with the result that distributions from the Sub-Funds, the lump-sum taxation amount and capital gains from the disposal of the Shares would be taxable at the level of the German Investors. German Investors should seek independent professional advice whether the partial tax exemption for Equity Funds, Mixed Funds, Real Estate Funds and Non-Domestic Real Estate Funds would apply on the basis of the (since 1 January 2018) relevant version of the Prospectus.
